Microsoft Awards Stardock's Enhancement Software the Certified for Windows Vista Logo

Plymouth, MI- (June 29, 2007) – Microsoft has awarded Stardock's TweakVista™ software its prestigious Certified for Windows Vista logo. Only applications that pass rigorous testing procedures for compatibility, functionality and reliability on Windows Vista-based personal computers are granted this logo.

TweakVista is part of Stardock's Object Desktop® suite of customization applications. TweakVista allows users to configure Windows Vista to meet their individual usage. Unlike other power tools for Windows, TweakVista automatically prompts enhancement recommendations, offering easy "one click" updates for otherwise complex configuration changes. TweakVista is also safe to use. By leveraging Microsoft's system-restore technology any changes users make can easily be rolled back. Consequently users can freely experiment with different settings without risking harm to their computers.

"Microsoft's recognition of TweakVista is further testament to Stardock's leadership in the desktop enhancement market," said Phil Madis, Director of Business Development at Stardock. "We feel that TweakVista enhances the Windows experience in a way that benefits most users. People use their computers in a variety of ways today, for work, as a media center and as a gaming platform. By selecting the appropriate user profile from those included with TweakVista, with just one click you can change settings to optimize the PC for how you are using it at a specific time. This is a great convenience that benefits not only the power user, but the average person as well."

"Some of the many powerful features in TweakVista include the ability to quickly and easily customize security settings, start-up management, internet optimization and process management," continued Madis. "Even the more savvy computer users will benefit from Tweak Vista's ability to quickly optimize the performance of Microsoft's Vista operating system."

TweakVista is available for purchase as a standalone application for $19.95 or as part of Stardock's Object Desktop suite of software which includes WindowBlinds, IconPackager, DesktopX and much more for $49.95.
